Biography

I hold a Ph.D. in Political Science and Public Administration from Istanbul University and currently work as a Research Assistant at Manisa Celal Bayar University in Türkiye. My research focuses on political behavior and political psychology, particularly political decision-making, political attitudes, and the cognitive and social processes that shape political choices. I also work on democratization, political participation, and public policy, with a particular interest in how framing, perceptions, and digital environments influence political behavior. I specialize in research methodology, particularly qualitative approaches, and develop mixed-methods research designs that incorporate qualitative and quantitative data, experimental approaches, and computational analysis using Python, depending on the research question. As a professional MAXQDA trainer, I provide training and methodological support in qualitative and mixed-methods research, including data analysis, interpretation, and reporting. My research also contributes to the UN Sustainable Development Goals, particularly Quality Education (Goal 4), Gender Equality (Goal 5), Reduced Inequalities (Goal 10), Peace, Justice and Strong Institutions (Goal 16), and Partnerships for the Goals (Goal 17). I also teach research methodology at Manisa Celal Bayar University, where I guide students in exploring different methodological approaches and designing and conducting their own research projects.
